The men in black wont bust down your door I also learned a TON about that Keihin PJ carb on your 98, as I have a 98 cr250 as well. It will get you by, but its basically crap. I ended up trashing it for the ever popular PWK carb. It will make your bike sing, quit spooging, and easily jet, let me know. If you keep talking to Black he will head off lots of frustrations I bet. After mucho time with the 98 carb and chassis, yes. Thats damn right Save the man some trouble.

These first gen frames were thick, rigid, and were a big change from the previous steel frames, where flexibility had been seen as a problem in the early years. The 19978 engines were equipped with a new stator, which supplied DC voltage for the new Keihin carburetor with an electronic Power Jet system, in efforts to control lean mixture preignition. The 1999 model was almost identical but the Power Jet had disappeared. For 2000, the second gen aluminum frame was less rigid, with thinner twinspars, providing a rigidity decrease and better handling. The Kehin PWK carburetor replaced earlier PJ models. The CDI box limited RPMs to 8000. The 2001 model was nearly identical, with a change to a different CDI box, adding 500 RPM to the redline where two more horsepower lurked. The new Mikuni TMX carburetor proved to be temperamental to weather changes. A TPS Thottle Position Sensor was added to the carburetor, powered by a new stator. The ECM would now be able to retard ignition timing to preclude preignition, though there was no ping sensor anywhere. Although the case reed engine has potentially the best design, it was never developed to its full potential by Honda, as the industry attention rapidly turned to four stroke engine development. Many owners of the final generation of the CR250 felt the need to turn to the aftermarket to bring that engine to its full potential. The 2001 models continue to be savored by lovers of the CR250, considered the best of the best ever produced. Now, a decade after its demise, with the fully developed four strokes proven to be so highly tuned that they tend to fail in massively expensive scattering of pieces, the 2 stroke CR250s are making a resurgence. Parts out of production are being hoarded, and prices skyrocketing.

These are recommendations only, based upon our testing at sealevel atmospheric pressure, a 6580F degree ambient air temperature, a 321 fuel to oil mixing ratio on super unleaded pump fuel with a stock motor. For some models we offer a Power Up jet kit for optimum tuning. Kits may include jets, needles and any necessary hardware and have been developed with the assistance of Dynojet. There are too many variables outside of our control to give you an exact configuration that works perfectly under all conditions. Our recommendations are just that, a starting point to reference from. Higher elevations, high humidity, hotter temperatures are examples that will require leaner jetting. Colder temperatures are an example that will require richer jetting.

If you are unknowledgeable or don't feel comfortable tuning your machine yourself, find a mechanic in your area who is. Always check that your jetting is correct when changing parts that could affect the intake system, exhaust system and any product or change that could alter fuel combustion in the cylinder ie.Check out our website www.fmfracing.com for additional information.
